PROF. YOUNG WILL STUDY WASHAKIES

Leaves Soon to Learn From Them Their Interesting Traditions.

TRACES OF FRENCH TONGUE

Believed Tribe May Throw Light on Operations of Trappers in Early Western History,

Prof. Levi Edgar Young of the University of Utah will leave soon for the Washakie Indian farm in north central Utah near the Idaho line, where he will spend a few days studying the traditions and legends of those Indians. The Washakies are a branch of the Utes and Bannocks. They were among the first western Indians to take up agriculture, and have been the most successful farmers in their locality. Last fall they led in the production of dry farm grains, surpassing even their white brothers, with an average yield of 30 bushels of wheat to the acre.

of 30 bushels of wheat to the acre. Prof. Young is especially interested in their traditions. The "happy hunting grounds," they declare, are in the Teton mountains to the morth. The Great Spirit has his abode in the mightlest of the Teton peaks. In their language are to be found many words of French origin. This fact has led Prof. Young to believe that some of the traditions preserved among them may of French origin. This fact has led Prof. Young to believe that some of the traditions preserved among them may throw light upon the early operations in this region of the French trappers and voyageurs. There are plenty of historical documents pointing to the presence of these French explorers and hunters in southern Idaho and western Colorado, and they have left as evidence of their presence numerous towns, still bearing French names, which have grown from French trading posts; but little is known definitely concerning the part which they played in exploration and discovery. Prof. Young hopes to get hold of some of the traditions relating to these important matters. Especially has he in mind the gathering of any possible information touching the discovery of Great Salt Lake, a historical event shrouded in a good deal of uncertainty, although Jim Bridger is given the credit by some historians as being, among white men, probably the person to whom the honor is due.

Since the chiefs of the Washakles are all able to speak English fluently, Prof. Young is not likely to have any difficulty gathering the data that may be preserved in the Indian traditions, but he will make certain by taking along with him as guide and interpreter, Mo-

PUT UP JOB.

Police Agree That "Confession" of Edward Hoeven Is a Trick.

Warden Pratt of the state prison and the Ogden police agree that the "confession" of Edward Hoeven to a Chicago policeman that it was he who robbed the Ogden House of $90 instead of George the Ogden House of $50 instead of George B. Smith, the night clerk, is a put un job. The Ogden police claim that Smith himself confessed, while being taken to the state prison, that he had robbed the safe of the money left by a lodger for safe keeping, and framed the holdunstory in hopes of escaping detection. At the state prison it is learned that Hoeven was "doing time" there, when Smith was brought down, and a friendship sprang up between the men which resulted in Hoeven's promising to pose, on being released, as the hotel "holdun," in expectation of securing Smith's pardon. After this had happened, Hoeven would have had little difficulty in proving an alibi in the matter of the robbery.

GLANDERS PREVALENT.

State Veterinarian Recommends In Report Stamping Out Evil.

Glanders among horses and tuberculosis among cattle are becoming so serious throughout the state that Dr. A. Carrington Young, state veterinarian, recommends in his annual report to Gov. William Spry that steps be taken to stamp out the evil, that owners of sick cattle be remunerated to some exfor their losses and that tests of the horses and the cattle in the state be made. The report further recommends that the state veterinarian's office be sep-arated from the Agricultural college, as all of the veterinarian's time is required among the live stock of the state. It also is recommended that the vet-erliarian be allowed more than $500 a year for office and traveling expenses, and that an appropriation be made that will enable the veterinarian to employ deputies when needed.

Dr. Young gives a brief summary of stock conditions throughout the state, saying that a few horses in Cache county were found suffering from glanders; tuberculosis among cattle is on the de-crease; black-log broke out in Emery county, but the cases were few and re-sponded to treatment; lip and leg ui-ceration prevailed to some extent among the sheep and some owners suffered heavy losses, but the disease has heen almost entirely cradiented; hogs in Weber county suffered from cholera to some extent, but the loss was light.

Household Pet. The good guardians of the peace and will be the speaker in the Seventh ward and among the musical numbers will be a song by members of the Young Ladles' association and a clarinet solo by Nephi McLachlan. The meeting commences at 6 o'clock.

The good guardians of the peace and dignity of the community are looking for one John Doe Rover, a certain doe fo the select Newfoundland type, against whom Claud Seber. 5 Brunswick court, has evidence on which to convict him of the misdemeanor of petit larceny as follows, to-wit: That John Doe Rover on the 30th day of December, 1919, wilfully, knowingly, and with intent to deprive the owner thereof, did take, steal and carry away from those certain premises known as No. 5. Brunswick court, city and county of Salt Lake, State of Utah, the personal property of another, to-wit: One Persian rug, valued at $15, in the lawful money of the United States, said rug being then and there the personal property and chattels of Claud Seber. The charge is even more serious from the fact that it is alleged that Rover took the rug out of revenge for bieing snubbed by Trigle, another dog, who has rightful residence at the Seber home. Seber would gladly refuse to prosecute the charges if he could recover the rug, the loss of which he decely deplores.
